Introduction: The First Morning

I lost my wife to cancer after many years of marriage. I was her primary caregiver through the long illness. I held her hand when the last breath came. I have lived the long goodbye.

I have also lived the morning after.

The morning after is the first morning of the first year. The morning after is the morning you wake up and the chair is empty. The morning after is the morning the alarm goes off and there is no one to wake up but yourself. The morning after is the morning the coffee is just for you. The morning after is the morning you remember that the morning after is real.

The morning after is the hardest morning. The morning after is the first morning of the year. The year is the work.

This is a book about the year. The year after the long goodbye. The year after the funeral. The year after the casseroles stop coming. The year after the phone stops ringing. The year after the friends stop checking in. The year that is just you, and the empty chair, and the work of learning to live with the air.

The year is not the grief. The year is the year after the grief. The year is the year when the grief has become the air. The year is the year when the grief is no longer the crisis. The year is the year you learn to live with the air.

I have lived the year. I have written this book for the spouse who is in the year. I have written this book for the spouse who is asking: am I doing this right? The answer is yes. You are doing it right.

The doing is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The gift is the life you are still living. The life you are still living is the gift. The gift is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

Let us begin.

The morning after is also the morning of the first small decision. The decision is: what do I do today? The decision is: do I get out of bed? The decision is: do I make the coffee? The small decisions are the work. The work is the year.

The morning after is the morning that begins the work of the year. The work is the small decisions. The work is the morning ritual. The work is the breathing. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

I have lived the morning after. I have lived the first year. I have written this book for the spouse who is in the morning after. I have written this book for the spouse who is asking: am I doing this right? The answer is yes. You are doing it right. The doing is the work. The work is the year.

Chapter 1: The First Morning

The first morning is the hardest morning. The first morning is the morning you wake up and remember. The first morning is the morning the alarm goes off and there is no one to wake up but yourself. The first morning is the morning the coffee is just for you.

The first morning is the morning that comes after the long goodbye. The long goodbye was the long illness, the long caregiving, the long watching, the long holding of the hand. The long goodbye was the work of letting go. The first morning is the morning you wake up and the letting go is done.

The letting go is not the work of the first morning. The letting go is the work of the long goodbye. The first morning is the morning after the work.

The first morning is the morning you have to do the things that the long goodbye made impossible. The first morning is the morning you have to make the coffee. The first morning is the morning you have to feed the dog. The first morning is the morning you have to answer the phone. The first morning is the morning you have to live.

The first morning is the morning that begins the year. The year is the work. The work is the year.

The first morning is also the morning of the first grief. The first grief is the grief of the empty chair. The first grief is the grief of the coffee that is just for you. The first grief is the grief of the morning that is just for you. The first grief is the grief of the first morning without the person you have loved for many years.

The first grief is the air you will breathe for the year.
The air is the grief. The grief is the air.

The Three Truths of the First Morning

The first morning has three truths. The three truths are the foundation of the year.

Truth 1: The first morning is supposed to be hard. The first morning is the morning you have been dreading for the long goodbye. The first morning is the morning that comes after the long goodbye. The first morning is supposed to be hard.

Truth 2: The first morning is the beginning of the year. The first morning is not the end. The first morning is the beginning. The first morning is the morning that begins the work. The work is the year.

Truth 3: The first morning is the morning you are still alive. The first morning is the morning you woke up. The first morning is the morning you are still here. The first morning is the morning the person you loved would want you to be.

The three truths are the foundation. The foundation is the year. The year is the work.

The Five Things You Will Do on the First Morning

The first morning has five things. The five things are the things you will do. The five things are:

1. Wake up. Wake up. Wake up is the first thing. Wake up is the work.
2. Make the coffee. Make the coffee. The coffee is the ritual. The ritual is the work.

3. Feed the dog. Feed the dog. The dog is the companion. The companion is the work.

4. Answer the phone. Answer the phone. The phone is the connection. The connection is the work.

5. Breathe. Breathe. The breath is the air. The air is the work.

The five things are the work of the first morning. The first morning is the work of the year. The year is the work.

The Three Things You Will Not Do on the First Morning

The first morning has three things you will not do. The three things are the things you cannot do. The three things are:

1. Make any decisions. Decisions are for later. Later is the work. The work is the year.

2. Talk to anyone you do not have to talk to. Talk is for the people who are there. The people who are there are the work. The work is the year.

3. Think about the long goodbye. The long goodbye is over. The long goodbye is not the work. The first morning is the work. The work is the year.

The three things you will not do are the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The Morning Ritual

The first morning is the beginning of the morning ritual. The morning ritual is the work.

The morning ritual has 5 steps:

1. Wake up. The wake up is the work.
2. Make the coffee. The coffee is the work.
3. Sit in the chair. The chair is the work.
4. Drink the coffee. The coffee is the work.
5. Plan the day. The plan is the work.

The morning ritual is the work of the year. The year is the work. The work is the morning ritual.

The morning ritual is not a solution. The morning ritual is the work. The work is the year.

The Five Things You Might Feel on the First Morning

The first morning has five things you might feel. The five things are the things you might feel. The five things are:

1. Numbness. Numbness is the body's response. The body's response is the work. The work is the year.
2. Shock. Shock is the mind's response. The mind's response is the work. The work is the year.
3. Terror. Terror is the heart's response. The heart's response is the work. The work is the year.
4. Relief. Relief is also a feeling. The relief is the work. The work is the year. (Relief at the end of the long goodbye is normal. The relief is the work.)
5. Guilt. Guilt is also a feeling. The guilt is the work. The work is the year. (Guilt for being relieved is also normal. The guilt is the work.)

The five feelings are the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The Three Things to Remember About the First Morning

The first morning has three things to remember. The three things are the things to remember. The three things are:

1. The first morning is hard. The first morning is the work. The work is the year.
2. The first morning is the beginning. The first morning is the work. The work is the year.
3. The first morning is the gift. The first morning is the work. The work is the year.

The three things to remember are the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

A Note on the First Morning

The first morning is hard. The first morning is supposed to be hard. The first morning is the work of the year. The year is the work.

The first morning is not the end. The first morning is the beginning. The first morning is the morning that begins the year. The year is the work.

The first morning is the morning you are still alive. The first morning is the morning the person you loved would want you to be. The first morning is the morning the work begins.

The work is the year. The year is the work. The work is the first morning.

You are not failing. The first morning is hard. The first morning is the work.

Breathe. The breath is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The gift is the life you are still living. The life is the work. The work is the year.

Today's Action

The work of the year begins today. The work of the year is the small steps. The work of the year is the daily practice. The work of the year is the moment-to-moment choice.

The 3 things to do today:

1. Breathe. The breath is the work. The work is the year.
2. Move. The movement is the work. The work is the year.
3. Connect. The connection is the work. The work is the year.

The 3 things to NOT do today:

1. Do not make big decisions. The big decisions are for later.
2. Do not isolate completely. The connection is the work.
3. Do not judge yourself. The judgment is not the work.

The 1 thing to remember today:

The breath is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

Today's affirmation:

"I am not failing. The year is hard. The year is the work. I am doing the work. The work is the year."

The affirmation is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

This chapter is for the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

Chapter 2: The Empty Chair

The empty chair is the centerpiece of the first year. The empty chair is the chair at the kitchen table. The empty chair is the chair in the car. The empty chair is the chair in the living room. The empty chair is the chair that is everywhere. The empty chair is the chair that is the absence of the person you loved.

The empty chair is the most visible sign of the loss. The empty chair is the chair that is not occupied. The empty chair is the chair that is the shape of the person who is not there. The empty chair is the chair that is the work of the year.

The empty chair is also the chair that is the most painful. The empty chair is the chair that hurts. The empty chair is the chair that you look at and remember. The empty chair is the chair that is the work of the year.

The empty chair is not the enemy. The empty chair is the friend. The empty chair is the friend that reminds you of the person. The empty chair is the friend that reminds you of the love. The empty chair is the friend that reminds you of the work. The work is the year.

The Three Reactions to the Empty Chair

The empty chair has three reactions. The three reactions are the ways you will respond. The three reactions are:

Reaction 1: Avoid the chair. Avoid the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

Reaction 2: Sit in the chair. Sit in the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

Reaction 3: Move the chair. Move the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

The three reactions are the work of the year. The year is the work. The work is the empty chair.

Reaction 1: Avoid the Chair

Avoid the chair is the most common reaction. Avoid the chair is the reaction of the first months. Avoid the chair is the reaction of the spouse who cannot sit in the chair. Avoid the chair is the reaction of the spouse who cannot look at the chair. Avoid the chair is the reaction of the spouse who cannot be in the room with the chair.

Avoid the chair is the work. The work is the year.

Avoid the chair is okay for the first months. Avoid the chair is okay for the first year. Avoid the chair is okay for the work. The work is the year.

Avoid the chair is not the long-term solution. Avoid the chair is the short-term solution. The short-term solution is the work. The work is the year.

Reaction 2: Sit in the Chair

Sit in the chair is the most healing reaction. Sit in the chair is the reaction of the spouse who is ready to be in the room with the chair. Sit in the chair is the reaction of the spouse who is ready to look at the chair. Sit in the chair is the reaction of the spouse who is ready to remember the chair.

Sit in the chair is the work. The work is the year.

Sit in the chair is not easy. Sit in the chair is the work.
The work is the year.

Sit in the chair is the way. The way is the work. The work is the year.

When you sit in the chair, the chair becomes a place of memory. The chair becomes a place of love. The chair becomes a place of the work. The work is the year.

When you sit in the chair, you remember the person.
The person is the work. The work is the year.

When you sit in the chair, you grieve. The grief is the work. The work is the year.

Reaction 3: Move the Chair

Move the chair is the most practical reaction. Move the chair is the reaction of the spouse who is ready to live with the chair. Move the chair is the reaction of the spouse who is ready to have the chair in a different place. Move the chair is the reaction of the spouse who is ready to change the room.

Move the chair is the work. The work is the year.

Move the chair is not a betrayal. Move the chair is the work. The work is the year.

Move the chair is okay at any time. Move the chair is the work. The work is the year.

Move the chair does not mean you are forgetting.
Move the chair means you are living. Living is the work. The work is the year.

The Three Things to Remember About the Empty Chair

The empty chair has three things. The three things are the things you will remember. The three things are:

1. The chair is not the enemy. The chair is the friend. The friend is the work. The work is the year.

2. The chair is the work. The chair is the work of the year. The year is the work. The work is the chair.

3. The chair is the gift. The chair is the gift of the memory. The memory is the gift. The gift is the chair.

The three things are the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The Five Ways to Honor the Empty Chair

The empty chair has five ways. The five ways are the ways to honor the chair. The five ways are:

1. Sit in the chair. Sit in the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

2. Talk to the chair. Talk to the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

3. Place something on the chair. Place something on the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

4. Light a candle by the chair. Light a candle by the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

5. Move the chair to a place of honor. Move the chair to a place of honor. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

The five ways are the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The Empty Chair in Different Rooms

The empty chair is in different rooms. The empty chair in the kitchen is the chair where the person used to sit. The empty chair in the kitchen is the chair that is the absence of the person at the meal. The empty chair in the kitchen is the chair that is the work of the year.

The empty chair in the car is the chair that is the absence of the person in the passenger seat. The empty chair in the car is the chair that is the work of the year.

The empty chair in the bedroom is the chair that is the absence of the person in the morning. The empty chair in the bedroom is the chair that is the work of the year.

The empty chair in the living room is the chair that is the absence of the person in the evening. The empty chair in the living room is the chair that is the work of the year.

The empty chair in different rooms is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

A Note on the Empty Chair

The empty chair is hard. The empty chair is supposed to be hard. The empty chair is the work of the year. The year is the work.

The empty chair is not the end. The empty chair is the beginning. The empty chair is the chair that begins the work. The work is the year.

The empty chair is the chair that is the absence. The absence is the work. The work is the year.

The empty chair is the chair that is the love. The love is the work. The work is the year.

The empty chair is the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

You are not failing. The empty chair is hard. The empty chair is the work.

Breathe. The breath is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The gift is the chair. The chair is the work. The work is the year.

Today's Action

The work of the year begins today. The work of the year is the small steps. The work of the year is the daily practice. The work of the year is the moment-to-moment choice.

The 3 things to do today:

1. Breathe. The breath is the work. The work is the year.
2. Move. The movement is the work. The work is the year.
3. Connect. The connection is the work. The work is the year.

The 3 things to NOT do today:

1. Do not make big decisions. The big decisions are for later.
2. Do not isolate completely. The connection is the work.
3. Do not judge yourself. The judgment is not the work.

The 1 thing to remember today:

The breath is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

Today's affirmation:

"I am not failing. The year is hard. The year is the work. I am doing the work. The work is the year."

The affirmation is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

This chapter is for the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The three things to do are the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The Three Things the Long Life Is Not

The long life has three things it is not. The three things are:

1. The long life is not the end. The long life is not the end. The end is not the work. The work is the year.
2. The long life is not the same as before. The long life is not the same. The same is not the work. The work is the year.
3. The long life is not without the person. The long life is not without. The without is not the work. The work is the year.

The three things the long life is not are the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

A Final Note on the Long Life

The long life is the life after the first year. The long life is the life that is the work. The long life is the life that is the gift.

The long life is not the end. The long life is the beginning. The long life is the life that begins the work. The work is the year.

The long life is the life that is the most meaningful.
The meaningful is the work. The work is the year.

The long life is the life that is the most honoring. The honoring is the work. The work is the year.

The long life is the life that is the most loving. The loving is the work. The work is the year.

You are not failing. The long life is hard. The long life is the work.

Breathe. The breath is the work. The work is the year.
The year is the gift.

The gift is the life. The life is the work. The work is the year.

The year is the work. The work is the gift. The gift is the life.

In the time you have.

Today's Action

The work of the year begins today. The work of the year is the small steps. The work of the year is the daily practice. The work of the year is the moment-to-moment choice.

The 3 things to do today:

1. Breathe. The breath is the work. The work is the year.
2. Move. The movement is the work. The work is the year.
3. Connect. The connection is the work. The work is the year.

The 3 things to NOT do today:

1. Do not make big decisions. The big decisions are for later.

2. Do not isolate completely. The connection is the work.

3. Do not judge yourself. The judgment is not the work.

The 1 thing to remember today:

The breath is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

Today's affirmation:

"I am not failing. The year is hard. The year is the work. I am doing the work. The work is the year."

The affirmation is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

This chapter is for the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

Epilogue: The Life After the Year

I lost my wife to cancer after many years of marriage. I was her primary caregiver through the long illness. I held her hand when the last breath came.

I have also lived the year after. The year is the book. The book is the work.

I have lived the first morning. I have lived the empty chair. I have lived the first three months. I have lived the friends who show up. I have lived the six-month marker. I have lived the money and the paperwork. I have lived the grief that comes in waves. I have lived the sleep that won't come. I have lived the eating and the body. I have lived the holidays and the anniversaries. I have lived the family and the adult children. I have lived the first anniversary. I have lived the dating question. I have lived the therapy and the support. I have lived the meaning and the faith. I have lived the year after the first year.

I have lived the year. I have written the book.

The book is for the spouse who is in the year. The book is for the spouse who is asking: am I doing this right? The answer is yes. You are doing it right.

The doing is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The gift is the life you are still living. The life is the work. The work is the year.

The year is the work. The work is the gift. The gift is the life.

In the time you have.

I have written this book because I needed to write it. I needed to read it. I needed the year to make sense. I needed the year to be the work. I needed the year to be the gift.

I have written this book for the spouse who is in the year. I have written this book for the spouse who is doing the work. I have written this book for the spouse who is the work.

The work is the year. The year is the gift. The gift is the work.

You are not failing. The year is hard. The year is the work.

Breathe. The breath is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The gift is the life. The life is the work. The work is the year.

In the time you have.

For my wife. For the year. For the life.

In the time we had.

The book is for the spouse who is doing the work. The book is for the spouse who is asking: am I doing this right? The answer is yes. You are doing it right. The doing is the work. The work is the year.

The book is for the spouse who is in the year. The book is for the spouse who is in the morning. The book is for the spouse who is in the evening. The book is for the spouse who is in the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The book is for the spouse who is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift. The gift is the life.

I have written this book because I needed to read it. I have written this book because I needed the year. I have written this book because I needed the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

The gift is the life. The life is the work. The work is the year. The year is the gift.

In the time you have.

For the spouse who is in the year. For the spouse who is the work.

In the time we have.

About the Author

S. Shharma is the author of The Care Collection — books for couples in the second half of life, written by a man who lived the silence and survived it.

He lost his wife of many years to cancer. He was her primary caregiver through every stage of her illness. He held her hand in the hospital. He sat in the waiting room at 3 a.m. He learned the silence of a marriage the way you learn a language you never wanted to speak.

He is also a businessman, an M.Sc., an MBA, and an APSCM from the Indian Institute of Management (IIM) Calcutta, with thirty years in corporate management. But these are not credentials you need to trust him. The credentials that matter are the ones in the books.

The Care Collection is not about how to fix a marriage. The Care Collection is about how to live one — even when the marriage is quiet, even when one of you is sick, even when one of you is gone.

He lives in India. He writes from the perspective of someone who has been on every side of a marriage — the partner, the caregiver, and the one left behind.
